LIFESTYLE - GARDENING

This book explores flower arranging through a gardener's eyes, embracing the imperfections of harvesting from the garden—wonky stems, bruised petals, and even a weed or two in the vase. Unlike florists aiming for perfection, we arrange flowers to please ourselves and our friends. In the rush of life, moments of creativity and connection with nature can be rare, yet they offer profound calm. Flowers for Friends reflects on the seasons through Julia Atkinson-Dunn's harvests and foraging in Canterbury, New Zealand, encouraging readers to celebrate quirky, home-grown arrangements with her accessible guidance and signature casual tone.
